Qatar will allow foreign companies and individuals to own real estate in more areas in the country, liberalizing rules to attract overseas funds in the sector as part of moves to diversify the economy. Non-Qatari individuals could own properties in nine areas, up from three before, while the number of areas where foreigners may use real estate has also been increased to 16, a government statement said. Foreign companies can also own properties in nine areas, a big boost from the past when they were only allowed access to real estate ownership within the confines of The Pearl Island project in Doha. Qatar government will also grant residency to owners of property worth at least QAR 730,000 (USD 200,000) as well as their families. We believe this development is good for real estate companies operating in Qatar. The threshold for availing residency is also lower compared to other neighboring states. Hence, we believe sales of more residential units in Qatar in the coming period.

Fitch Solutions maintained its Brent oil price forecast to 2024, the company's latest oil price outlook report revealed. Fitch expects Brent to average $44 per barrel in 2020, $51 per barrel in 2021, $53 per barrel in 2022, $55 per barrel in 2023 and $58 per barrel in 2024. The forecast is the same as Fitch Solutions' September oil price outlook. The high level of uncertainty for oil demand and the upcoming US elections pose a myriad of complex risks for oil prices, which are skewed to the downside. This contrasts with the strong recovery in China and increasing fuel consumption in key markets, which build a good case for a more optimistic outlook for oil prices.

Recommendation:

Internationally, markets remained volatile last week on the news regarding pull back and pull in news of the additional stimulus by the US President. We expect such trend to continue until US elections. However, 3Q20 results are around the corner which will give market something to look out for.

Regionally, market continues to take its cues from the international market and oil price movement. Oil prices witnessed some improvement on the back of production cuts in Norway because of Green Peace led protests and also because of production disruption in Gulf of Mexico because of Hurricane Delta.

Locally, we will see majority of the corporates announcing the third quarter results this week. We advise investors to carefully vet the results before taking any investment decision.
